Nextt Shared Support Hub

Live more independently, with flexible Onsite Shared Support 24/7 when you need it.

What is the Nextt Shared Support Hub?

More independence, with support close by

The Nextt Shared Support Hub gives you the freedom and privacy of living in your own Specialist Disability Accommodation (SDA) apartment, with shared support worker onsite 24/7.

This is known as Onsite Shared Support (OSS). OSS can give you access to short, flexible support when something unexpected comes up or you need an extra hand. It can be planned in advance or accessed when you need it.

Because the onsite support is shared between people living in the building, you can have support nearby without having a support worker in your apartment all the time.

Support that works around you:

At Nextt, we take the time to understand your routines, goals, preferences and existing supports, so we can work out how the Hub can best fit into your life.

Our experienced support workers are onsite day and night, available to assist with day-to-day support needs, routines and overnight assistance if required.

This enables you to live as independently as you choose and gives you the flexibility to:

- enjoy the privacy of your own home
- access support onsite when you need it
- keep your existing one-to-one supports where required
- build confidence doing more things independently
- make the most of your available funding.

What a day with Hub Support might look like

1 During the day:

You can access short 20-minute drop-in supports up to five times a day.

These can be planned and scheduled around your routine or used when something unexpected comes up.

For example, you might arrange a regular check-in at the same time each morning or ask for some extra help during the day when you need it.

2 Overnight:

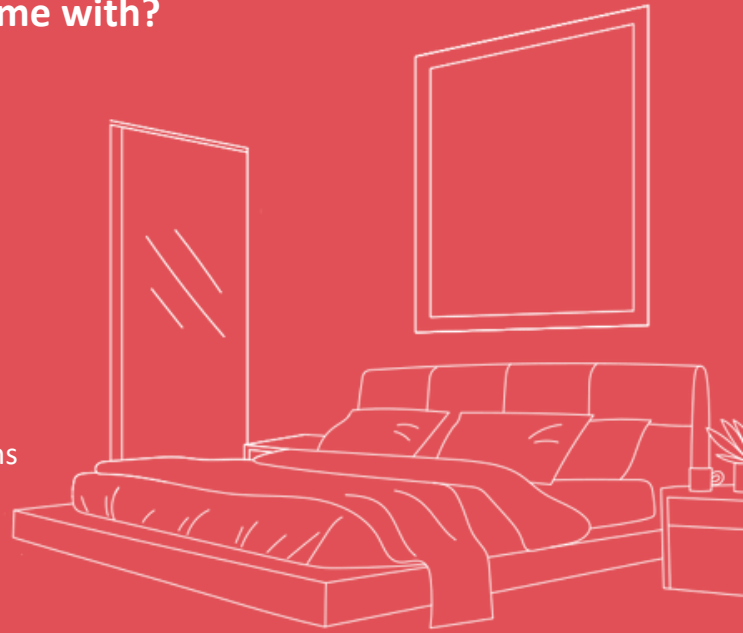

Shared support is onsite 24/7, including overnight.

This means you can access support if something comes up during the night, giving you the reassurance of knowing someone is nearby.

What can the Hub support team help me with?

Your Hub team may be able to help with:

- an extra pair of hands for a transfer
- Make a light snack or drink
- Help prepare meals during the day
- putting on or taking out a load of washing
- bringing your shopping inside
- small household tasks
- assistance when something unexpected happens
- checking in or having a chat.

Need more regular support?

Nextt can also provide longer, planned support shifts that are funded separately from your shared Hub support, depending on your funding and individual needs.

These permanent planned support shifts can be accessed if you have Core Supports NDIS funding and could include help with:

- showering and personal care
- medication routines
- daily activities
- getting out into the community
- working towards your individual goals.

Who the Hub is for?

The Hub may suit you if you want to live more independently but still value knowing support is close by.

It may be a good fit if:

✓ You want to live independently

You want the privacy and independence of your own apartment, without having a support worker with you all the time.

✓ You're comfortable with shared support

Because Hub support is shared, there may be times when the support worker is helping someone else.

Your Hub team will talk with you about how shared support works, what you can expect and whether it suits your individual support needs.

✓ You need occasional help throughout the day

You may be comfortable managing many parts of your day independently but need short periods of assistance with particular tasks or when something unexpected happens.

✓ You want support that complements your existing supports

Hub support can work alongside your planned one-to-one supports, giving you another layer of flexible assistance when you need it.

How is the Hub Support funded?

Onsite shared support is listed in the NDIS Pricing Arrangements as Unplanned Onsite Shared Support in Specialist Disability Accommodation and is generally charged on a weekly basis.

For people with specific OSS funding in their plan, the current rate is:

$1,616.26 per week

$84,045.52 per year

You may also be able to use eligible Core and home and living funding flexibly towards a Hub arrangement, depending on your individual NDIS plan and funding.

We'll talk with you about your funding, support needs and existing supports to help you understand what arrangement may work for you.

Why choose Nextt?

We build support around you

We're flexible

We look at how shared Hub support and your planned one-to-one supports can work together around your needs.

Testimonial

Living independently, having choice and control over how I live my life whilst having the comfort of knowing that should I require extra support during those tricky moments helping me with daily living tasks is truly amazing.

Not only do I feel empowered as an individual, but having that peace of mind as well; being able to mix the two of these together is the brilliance of the shared support model that Nextt offers me.

The shared supports model is definitely the way of the future.

A man with short brown hair and a light beard, wearing a teal sweater, is sitting at a wooden desk. He is smiling and looking down at a French Bulldog that is sitting on the desk, looking up at him. The dog is brown and black. The man's hand is near the dog's face. On the desk, there is an open notebook, a laptop, and a potted plant. The background is a bright, out-of-focus indoor space.
